„Visiting Professor“ from the United States 2027

Funding Opportunity through the Max Kade Foundation

To foster academic exchange between the U.S. and Germany, the Max Kade Foundation in New York, in cooperation with Heidelberg University’s North America Liaison Office, once again invites Heidelberg faculty to nominate a researcher from a U.S. university for a guest professorship at Heidelberg University, Germany.

The length of the stay must be at least one month and may be as long as one semester. It can take place between May and December 2027. The Max Kade Foundation will provide up to $15,000 funding for travel, lodging, and an honorarium.

Eligible candidates must be nominated by their host at Universität Heidelberg (either a Heidelberg University professor or an academic institution of Heidelberg University) by January 18th, 2027 at the latest.

Please submit nominations via email to Elisabeth Trnka-Hammel, Dezernat Internationale Beziehungen (elisabeth.trnka@zuv.uni-heidelberg.de)

The nomination should include the following:

- General information regarding
  - The hosting/nominating institution or department
  - the nominee’s professional background, including resume or CV, and, if applicable, a list of publications, honors, and awards
  - The nominee’s home institution
  - The dates of the desired stay at Heidelberg University
- Program of activities at Heidelberg (research project, teaching assignments)
- How the nominee’s time at Heidelberg University will enrich the university and its students and provide opportunities for collaboration after the funding period has ended

All nominations must be written in English and may be no longer than 3 pages, not including attachments.

A committee under the direction of the Vice-Rector International Affairs and Diversity, Prof. Dr. Marc-Philippe Weller, will conduct the selection process.
